CREATION'S CORNER AUTUMN FAITH BY HARRY WALLIN

Many people find Autumn depressing. Yes, the air is brisk and brings spring to the step, if only to keep one warm. Yes, the colors are beautiful, but the growing season is over. The remaining flowers are killed by the frost. The leaves will soon drop, leaving the skeletons of the trees exposed. Death is in the air.

Perhaps I am out of step with many people, but I find Autumn a very inspiring and hope-filled time. It is a time when all of nature seems to be showing great faith. Late Summer is a time to prepare for darkness and cold, but Autumn is a time for faith.

Some plants do not survive the freezing temperatures. By now, they are fully prepared for spring. Their seeds are set and have been distributed by an endless variety of creative strategies. Some seeds drop and roll, others are packed into exploding capsules.
